

Centurion Hospice

On Saturday 8 October we celebrated International Hospice and Palliative Care Day with a performance by the Randburg Men's Choir, and presenting "Friend of Hospice" certificates to our donors.

Some of the highlights were the song by Alida White – "Sien jou more". She wrote this song shortly after being diagnosed with a life threatening illness, and was performed with so much feeling, that it brought tears to many an eye.

The last song was the "slave chorus" from the opera Nabucco, by Verdi, and was dedicated to all the staff at Centurion Hospice, with the translation which had the words:

"Oh remembrance of joy and of woe", and then the last few sentences "so that we may endure to the last".
